Advanced Modern Technologies Announces Equity Investment George Patrick Murphy Joins Board of Directors

LOS ANGELES—Advanced Modern Technologies Corporation (AMTC), a leading global designer, manufacturer and distributor of innovative and reliable automatic washroom fixtures, announces the completion of an equity investment in AMTC from a private investment group. The group includes George Patrick Murphy, former President and CEO of Technical Concepts. In conjunction with the equity investment, Mr. Murphy will serve as a Strategic and Operational Advisor to the management of AMTC, as well as a member of the Board of Directors.

“This new round of financing combined with George’s experience and contact base in the plumbing, sanitary supply and paper channels will help accelerate our growth objectives as we continue to take market share,” said Jorge Maercovich, President and CEO of AMTC.

From 1997 to 2005, Mr. Murphy served as President and CEO of Technical Concepts LLC, a global supplier of automatic washroom fixtures and soap and air care systems. Prior to his tenure there, Murphy held several top management and sales positions with divisions of Kimberly-Clark Corporation and Scott Paper Company.

“AMTC has a truly unique position in today’s washroom automation market. Their products combine the highest reliability with cutting edge water saving features, positioning AMTC as the solution provider for the future. I am excited to partner with the Company to help profitably grow its market share,” said Murphy.

About AMTC

Based in Woodland Hills, California, AMTC is a leading global designer, manufacturer and distributor of innovative and highly reliable automatic and water saving products created for use in commercial, institutional and industrial (CII) washrooms. AMTC has a unique and rapidly expanding proprietary line of automated and manual products and systems which significantly reduce the water used in a CII washroom, while at the same time enhancing the overall image and hygienic appeal of the facility.

AMTC’s products are easy to install, have a quick pay-back in water and sewer savings, and deliver on their promised performance. All AMTC flush products have been tested by the International Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Officials. AMTC products are backed by the best warranty in the industry.
